A Bad Cut From an Adz.

Frank McQuitty, fireman at the crew of Mo. Pac. car repairers at this point, sustained a bad cut while at work. He was hewing a piece of timber with an adz, when the sharp instrument slipped from the stick and entered the left leg a few inches above the ankle. A gash several inches long, penetrating the flesh to the bone was made. Dr. Allen, the company physician, dressed the wound.

Set Ways of a Setting Hen.

"Thelgia is notoriously pig headed," J. Allen Prewitt, ex-mayor of Independence, says. "But nothing is more 'set' in its ways than a 'setting' hen. You can ring a hog's nose and control him, but you have to wring a hen's neck to convince her she shouldn't 'set' when she makes up her mind to. Provided, of course, that animals have minds.

"We have a Brown Leghorn hen which determined to 'set' some eight months ago. Mrs. Prewitt and myself have spent eight months trying to 'break her up.' It has narrowed down now to a contest of will power.
We used every method to break up a 'setting' hen that science has devised. We locked her up in solitary confinement, we threw cold water in her face, we made her roost on a fence, we threw her off one nest, then another. But alas, in vain.

"That hen only looks disgusted, utters a few motherly 'cluck clucks' and settles down to 'setting' on the bare ground, on a fence post or in a tree. She has passed the stage where she requires a nest or the semblance of one. She has a china nest egg which she rolls about with her other peregrinations, 'setting' on it at any place or any time where she gets a few moments free from persecution.

"The hen's long fight for a chance to rear a family has finally been won. She did not hatch her offspring from the china egg, but she adopted the new born progeny of the family and drove the mother away. She moved her china egg into the nest with the kittens, so she not only has the animals, but her former prosperity as well. When the kittens, whose eyes are not yet opened, mew for milk we muzzle the hen long enough for the mother cat to feed them. Then the hen reclains the brood and drives the cat away with a sharp peck on the nose."

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven Catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure.

Green Worms at Sedalia.

Sedalia Democrat-Sentinel.

The armies of green worms that have invaded Sedalia and in some parts have fallen upon and are destroying the foliage of many of our most beautiful trees, should receive prompt attention either from the authorities or from owners of real estate. These worms have already begun their devastating work in at least two localities in the western part of the city and are moving forward with incredible rapidity as fast as they denude trees upon which they work.

It is said by those who know that each body is composed of thousands of these pestiferous insects and that they never desert a tree upon which they settle until nothing is left but the bare trunk and branches, consuming every vestige of foliage. Even to the casual passerby evidences of their thoroughly destructive work is plainly in evidence, the contrast between the path over which they have gone and that upon which they are moving being more than sad to those who appreciate the beauties of nature.

Where Bullets Flew.

David Parker, of Fayette, N. Y., a veteran of the civil war, who lost a foot at Gettysburg, says: "The good Electric Bitters have done me more than five hundred dollars worth to me. I spent much money doctoring for a bad case of stomach trouble, to little purpose. I then tried Electric Bitters, and they cured me. I now take them as a tonic, and they keep me strong and well." 50c at Fattening Turkeys.

Ruralist.

Thanksgiving Day and turkey are synonymous—at least in the markets.
Then, of all seasons of the year, this proud American bird is presumed to command the highest market price.
Of course, its scales weight, price it will bring and cash it will yield will depend to some extent upon the way it is fed and fattened.

When selling dressed poultry, it always pays to have as plump, nice looking carcasses as can possibly be obtained. The producer thus not only obtains higher prices, but his reputation is enhanced and his market made surer for future years.
Turkeys are no exception to the rule.
And by shutting them up and feeding them properly, the poorest specimen may be brought into a fine condition for marketing in a month or two. Some have found that barley meal and corn meal, mixed half and half, is a most excellent ration for fattening fowls, especially if it be fed fresh at each meal, with no more than the turkeys will eat up clean.
It is the opinion of the writer, however, that more variety is better.
Accordingly he would suggest that boiled potatoes, mashed and mixed with meal, with some skimmed milk added, be fed moderately warm and to substitute for the lack of insects have some kind of animal food, of which nothing is cheaper or more desirable than butcher's scraps, stirred into it. At least once a day good, sound corn one year old, should be given; new corn is too loosening to be used. No more of this than of the mash, however, should be thrown out than the birds can be lured to eat up clean, and that their flesh may look bright and present a neat appearance, they should have all the water that they want to drink.
Turkeys that have got their growth and are in fair condition, may be fattened for market in a few weeks if they are confined and well fed and watered every day.

Gumption on the Farm.

How's the back yard? Why not snug up a little?

Herd's grass is best for that piece of low, wet ground.

Hit the rusty nail a whack or two on the head, and it will pull a great deal easier.

The crop of boys and girls should be well cultivated; send them to a good school.

Be sure to open furrows through the grain field to carry off the water when there is an excess of it.

Wire netting will keep the rats out of the corn crib and give you a chance to put more money in the bank.

Clean the fertilizer attachment to the grain drill thoroughly before putting away. Oil the parts with kerosene.

Get at that leaky barn roof right away. If you don't, there will be a big leak in your pocketbook pretty soon for a new roof.

Every farmer should have an office, where his books, desk, writing materials, seed catalogues and seed samples will be right at hand. It pays.

Why don't farmers vote for farmers for office? Why do they not see that they are nominated and then elected? This is the time to see that farmers have their share of the offices.

When the carriage gets a bit rusty, wash it up nice and clean, then rub it over with a soft cloth dipped in linseed-oil. Just a little will make it shine like a glass bottle. Don't drive the carriage out, after wiping, until the oil is well dried in.

Be sure to run the mower over the stubble field this fall. There should be no tangled mat of grass or weeds left for field mice to harbor and breed under, safe from the crow and other birds which feed on such vermin.
Otherwise the grass crop for next year may be greatly damaged.— From Farm Journal, October.

Didn't Practice His Preach.

While a penurious grocer was telling his new boy how careful he must be, a fly settled on a bag of sugar.
The grocer caught it and threw it away. The boy then said: "If you want me to be careful you are setting me a bad example." "Why?" asked the grocer. "Because," said the boy, "you have thrown that fly away without brushing the sugar off its feet."—Cleveland Leader.

UNITED STATES COURT OF CLAIMS

The Publishers of Webster's International Dictionary allege that it is, in fact, the popular Unabridged Dictionary resold in every detail, and easily enriched in every part, with the purpose of adapting it to meet the larger and severer requirements of another generation.
We are of the opinion that this allegation more clearly and accurately describes the work than has been accomplished and the result that has been reached. The Dictionary, as it now stands, has been thoroughly revised in every part, and is substantially a new work, and is a far more complete and up-to-date philological knowledge than any other generation that the world has ever known.

It is perhaps needless to add that we refer to the dictionary in our judicial work as of the highest authority in accuracy of definition; and that in the future as in the past it will be the source of constant reference.
